ABOUT THE FILM

THE ARMOR OF LIGHT follows an Evangelical minister and the mother of a teenage shooting victim who ask, is it possible to be both pro-gun and pro-life?

What price conscience? Abigail Disney's directorial debut, THE ARMOR OF LIGHT, follows the journey of an Evangelical minister trying to find the courage to preach about the growing toll of gun violence in America. The film tracks Reverend Rob Schenck, anti-abortion activist and fixture on the political far right, who breaks with orthodoxy by questioning whether being pro-gun is consistent with being pro-life. Reverend Schenck is shocked and perplexed by the reactions of his long-time friends and colleagues who warn him away from this complex, politically explosive issue.

Along the way, Rev. Schenck meets Lucy McBath, the mother of Jordan Davis, an unarmed teenager who was murdered in Florida and whose story has cast a spotlight on "Stand Your Ground" laws. McBath, also a Christian, decides to work with Schenck even though she is pro-choice. Lucy is on a difficult journey of her own, trying to make sense of her devastating loss while using her grief to effect some kind of viable and effective political action—where so many before her have failed.

ARMOR follows these unlikely allies through their trials of conscience, heartbreak and rejection, as they bravely attempt to make others consider America's gun culture through a moral lens. The film is also a courageous look at our fractured political culture and an assertion that it is, indeed, possible for people to come together across deep party lines to find common ground.

THE CAST

REVEREND ROB SCHENCK

Reverend Rob Schenck is an Evangelical minister and founder of the Christian outreach organization Faith and Action, based in Washington, DC. His candid and personal views on Capitol Hill activities have put him at the center of many Washington news conferences. He is often a guest on TV and radio shows, and he has been the focus of feature stories in the New York Times, Chicago Tribune, Houston Chronicle, and Los Angeles Times. Rev. Schenck is also the president of the National Clergy Council and the chairman of the Evangelical Church Alliance.

LUCY MCBATH

Lucy McBath is the mother of Jordan Davis, an unarmed teenager who was shot and killed in Jacksonville, Florida in November 2012. Since his death, McBath has advocated for solutions to the problem of gun violence as a national spokesperson for Moms Demand Action for Gun Sense in America.

In her work as a gun safety advocate, she has been invited to the White House, testified before the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee, and appeared on CNN and MSNBC. She recently founded the Walk With Jordan Scholarship Foundation.

JOHN M. PHILLIPS

John M. Phillips is an attorney based in Florida who was hired by Ron Davis and Lucy McBath to represent them in the state's case against the man who shot and killed their son. Phillips spent eight years as a trial lawyer for businesses such as State Farm, Coca-Cola, and Hertz, before founding his own trial law office in 2011. He has obtained multi-million-dollar verdicts and settlements on behalf of his clients, and he was selected in the Top 100 Trial Lawyers by the National Trial Lawyers Association.

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

I was raised in a filmmaking family. We talked about "story" and took apart other people's films over dinner. To me, it was just business, and I didn't think about making my own films. So when I did come to filmmaking I came to it late, and then only because I had run across unbelievable stories that had to be told—remarkable people that had to be known.

The films we produce at Fork Films all share that sense of discovery and urgency. I am drawn to people who shake up the status quo, who put themselves on the line for what they believe. They succeed because of, or possibly in spite of, doing the unexpected. They can be contrary, they can be bold, but they are willing to take risks for something bigger than themselves.

Reverend Rob Schenck is one such person. The subject of guns was not on his front burner when I approached him about an idea for a film in 2013. I was looking for someone—anyone—on the far right who might be willing to entertain the idea that there were some logical and even theological inconsistencies in the positions conservative evangelicals were taking on abortion and guns. In short, I wanted to know how a person could be both "pro-life" and "pro-gun."

For instance, most conservative Christians back "Stand Your Ground," laws the NRA has quietly lobbied for—and helped pass – in 23 states and counting. Those laws essentially say that when people carrying a weapon feel threatened, they can shoot without first trying to de-escalate the situation. From my perspective, shooting first is not a pro-life ethic and I wanted to find someone who could explain why it seems like so many Christians are arming up. I spoke with several Evangelical leaders who agreed, but would not put their careers and names at risk by saying so publicly.

Rob Schenck was different. He took my call, and invited me to his office in Washington, D.C. It was hard for me to sit down with Rob when we first met. He was a fierce person—or at least that's what my Google search made him sound like. He had spent a lifetime fighting with all his heart and soul on the opposite side of every social issue I believed in down to the tips of my toes—most importantly abortion. He was a founding member of Operation Rescue. He'd spent his life trying to undo a women's right to choose. He was the enemy—he was the "devil."

Yet, he was full of surprises. He said the growing gun violence in our culture could no longer be ignored; he wondered why so many Americans are living in fear and taking up arms. After praying on it, he told me he agreed that something needed to be done and decided to participate in the documentary.

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

The women and men in my films all share a few characteristics I admire. They are courageous and they are honest. They won't be tied down by lack of imagination, and they will do whatever it takes to fight for peace. So when it came time for me to step into directing for the first time, and I decided to reach across the frightening abyss of American politics, I realized I would have to hold myself to the same high standards of the people I most admired.

So I began filming with Rob in the spirit of peace, even though I worried that people on my own side of the political spectrum might accuse me of treason one day, or that I might lose friendships over offering this man legitimacy.

And of course, Rob is no devil at all. In fact, he is an extremely nice man, and smart, and literate and tolerant and everything I've never seen a film or a TV show or a book show an evangelical to be.

I have found this to be true: if you approach people with respect and an open heart, they will almost always respond to you in the same way. So Rob and I formed the most unlikely of friendships and it was in that spirit that we went forward on this journey together, poking into the darkest of political corners, asking the hardest, most sensitive of questions and pushing back on some of the most dearly held American creeds.

Lucy McBath was a far more easy person for me to meet and to understand. Warm, eloquent, passionate and incredibly bubbly, the story of her love for the son she lost in what can only be described as a monstrous act of cruelty was too awful to listen to, and too compelling to turn away from. The camera loved her and we knew that she would be able to give us a picture of the rawest anguish in an unstintingly generous way. Her honesty, her willingness to fight against the "Stand Your Ground" mentality that contributed to her son's murder, and her deep convictions as a Christian moved Rob beyond his reasonable trepidation to take more risks and to dig yet deeper for his moral courage.

I still believe all the same things about a woman's right to control her reproductive destiny with the same certainty as when I started this project. But now I also know that people like Rob do not disagree with me because they are bad people, or stupid, or because they have been duped or are part of a great conspiracy to ruin lives (although some or all of this may be true of some of his allies, but then again some or all of these things can be ascribed equally to plenty of people on my own side of the political spectrum).

I also know that miraculous things can happen when people choose to put aside their differences and choose to inhabit the spaces they share. Those spaces tend to be way above politics. That's what Rob and Lucy and my whole crew and I chose to do. And I think we have all been changed for the better.

THE DIRECTOR

Abigail E. Disney is an award-winning filmmaker, philanthropist and the CEO and president of Fork Films. An active supporter of peacebuilding, she is passionate about advancing women's roles in the public sphere. Disney's 20+ films and series focus on social issues, sharing a quality of spotlighting extraordinary people who speak truth to power.

Disney's directorial debut, THE ARMOR OF LIGHT, has been selected for the 2015 Tribeca Film Festival. THE ARMOR OF LIGHT follows an Evangelical minister trying to find the courage to preach about the growing toll of gun violence in America. Reverend Rob Schenck, anti-abortion activist and fixture on the political far right, breaks with orthodoxy by questioning whether being pro-gun is consistent with being pro-life.

Having grown up in a family of filmmakers, Disney turned to documentaries in 2008, inspired to tell the story of a brave group of women who used nonviolent protests and sex strikes to bring an end to Liberia's long civil war. That film, PRAY THE DEVIL BACK TO HELL, won best documentary at the Tribeca Film Festival in 2008, and screened in 60 countries around the world on all seven continents. PRAY THE DEVIL BACK TO HELL is broadly credited with highlighting the bravery and sacrifice of its lead figure, Leymah Gbowee, who received a Nobel Peace Prize in 2011.

The extraordinary response to PRAY THE DEVIL BACK TO HELL led Disney to work on the five-part special series for PBS, "WOMEN, WAR & PEACE," which aired in 2011 and was the winner of the Overseas Press Club's Edward R. Murrow Award, a Gracie Award, and a Television Academy Honor. This first-of-its-kind series created and executive produced by Abigail Disney, Pamela Hogan and Gini Reticker looked at the role of women in war in the modern age, not just as victims of conflict, but as active agents for peace in their communities.

PRAY THE DEVIL BACK TO HELL also led to Disney founding Peace is Loud, a nonprofit dedicated to supporting and spotlighting women who are stepping up for peace and resisting violence in their communities. Together, Fork Films and Peace is Loud produced "WOMEN, WAR & PEACE" screening kits, dubbed into four languages, for use by international grassroots organizations in an ambitious global outreach campaign. To date, over 1,500 screening kits have been shared with 250 partner organizations at 575 screening events reaching 35,000 viewers. Events featuring the films have taken place in 82 countries—reaching all continents, including Antarctica.

Disney has also executive produced films on a wide array of social issues, including 1971, FAMILY AFFAIR, CITIZEN KOCH, HOT GIRLS WANTED, THE INVISIBLE WAR (Academy Award® Nominee, Best Documentary Feature), RETURN, and SUN COME UP (Academy Award® Nominee, Best Documentary Short).

The Mask You Live In, Executive Producer (2015) Compared to girls, research shows that boys in the U.S. are more likely to be diagnosed with a behavior disorder, prescribed stimulant medications, fail out of school, binge drink, commit a violent crime, and/or take their own lives. The Mask You Live In, a film that is an exploration of American masculinity, asks society: how are we failing our boys?

Hot Girls Wanted, Executive Producer (2015) Thanks to the Internet, thousands of young American women are entering the 'amateur' porn world, fulfilling a growing demand for girl-next-door starlets. HOT GIRLS WANTED follows one such girl, eager to leave small-town life in search of freedom and fame. With the click of a mouse she transforms from A-student to fledgling amateur actress. She initially feels independent and popular starring in professionally produced videos - uploaded on sites garnering an average of 41 million hits a month. But as she and some of her new friends fall deeper into the darker corners of the Internet, and as new faces arrive daily, they're forced to reconsider an increasingly dubious line of work. Filmmakers Jill Bauer and Ronna Gradus, along with producer Rashida Jones and partners from the Kinsey Institute for Sex Research, rip the lid off of the often unchecked amateur porn industry.

THE DIRECTOR - FILMOGRAPHY

She's Beautiful When She's Angry, Co-Producer (2014) Born out of the revolutionary zeal of the '60s and '70s, the modern women's liberation movement brought feminism to the mainstream, with bra burnings and massive protests in the name of empowering women to feel equal to their male counterparts at home and in the workplace. But this revolution wasn't without tension—issues of race, sexuality and the role of men within it all threatened to tear the movement apart. Elucidated by interviews from participants as varied as Rita Mae Brown and Congresswoman Eleanor Holmes Norton, 'She's Beautiful When She's Angry' illuminates the roots of the modern battle for gender equality, one that still rages to this very day.

1971, Executive Producer (2014) The story of eight activists who plotted an intricate break-in to the local FBI offices to expose the illegal surveillance of ordinary Americans. Despite searching for the perpetrators in one of the largest investigations ever conducted, the FBI never solved the mystery behind the identities of the burglars. Until Now. For the first time, the Citizen's Commission reveal themselves, reflecting on their actions and raising broader questions surrounding security leaks in activism today.

Vessel, Executive Producer (2013) Dr. Rebecca Gomperts sails a ship around the world, providing abortions at sea for women with no legal alternative. Her idea begins as flawed spectacle, faced with governmental, religious, and military blockade. But with each roadblock comes a more refined mission, until Rebecca realizes she can use new technologies to bypass law - and train women to give themselves abortions using WHO-researched protocols with pills. From there we witness her create an underground network of emboldened, informed activists who trust women to handle abortion themselves. Vessel is Rebecca's story: one of a woman who hears and answers a calling, and transforms a wildly improbable idea into a global movement.

Citizen Koch, Co-Executive Producer (2013) The Supreme Court's Citizens United decision in 2010 lifted a century-long ban on restricted corporate election spending, unleashing a new era of unbridled special-interest campaign finance. Citizen Koch examines the mushrooming struggle between money and democracy through the dramatic lens of the 2011 standoff in Wisconsin when Governor Scott Walker, bankrolled by out-of-state billionaires, stripped state employees of their union rights.

Seeds of Time, Executive Producer (2013) A perfect storm is brewing as agriculture pioneer Cary Fowler races against time to protect the future of our food. Gene banks of the world are crumbling, crop failures are producing starvation inspired rioting, and the accelerating effects of climate change are already affecting farmers globally. But Fowler's journey, and our own, is just beginning: From Rome to Russia and, finally, a remote island under the Arctic Circle, Fowler's passionate and personal journey may hold the key to saving the one resource we cannot live without: our seeds.

The Only Real Game, Executive Producer (2013) A fighters' and dreamers' story about the magic of baseball for people in a remote and troubled place. Once princely Manipur, a strife-torn border state in northeast India, defies civil war, drugs, gun traffic, and HIV/AIDS through love of their national pastime. Dreams chase reality in this ancient region when a small group of baseball-loving New Yorkers, and two Major League Baseball Envoy coaches, team up with Manipuri men, women and children to "Play Ball." It's a far away story that brings us to the heart of the great American Game, or as Babe Ruth put it, "the only real game in the world." Narrated by Melissa Leo.

The Invisible War, Executive Producer (2012) An investigative and powerfully emotional examination of the epidemic of rape of soldiers within the U.S. military, the institutions that cover up its existence and the profound personal and social consequences that arise from it.

Open Heart, Co-Executive Producer (2012) Eight Rwandan children leave their families behind to embark on a life-or-death journey seeking high-risk heart surgery in Sudan. Open Heart reveals the intertwined endeavors of Dr. Emmanuel, Rwanda's lone government cardiologist, and Dr. Gino, the Salam Center's head surgeon, who is fighting to save his hospital, Africa's only link to life-saving free cardiac surgery for the millions who need it.

Alias Ruby Blade, Executive Producer (2012) Alias Ruby Blade is the story of Kirsty Sword Gusmao, First Lady of Timor-Leste. An aspiring documentary filmmaker, Kirsty instead became a courier for the Timorese resistance movement in Jakarta code named Ruby Blade. The Iran Job, Executive Producer (2012) At the height of international tension between America and Iran, Kevin Sheppard, a charismatic African-American basketball player accepts an offer to play professional basketball in Iran. What begins as a desire to 'explore the unknown' ends in an emotional roller-coaster as he forms an unlikely alliance with three young Iranian women against the backdrop of revolutionary social upheaval in Iran

Sexy Baby, Executive Producer (2012) The first documentary film to put faces to a seismic cultural shift: the cyber age is creating a new sexual landscape.

Mothers of Bedford, Executive Producer (2012) This feature length documentary follows five women incarcerated in the Bedford Hills Correctional Facility and looks at their lives through the lens of motherhood, and poses the question, "Is it possible to become a better mother while serving time in a maximum security prison?"

This is How I Roll, Executive Producer (2012) This Is How I Roll follows the story of a group of men who, in some ways, just want to be considered one of the girls. Roller derby has become an increasingly popular sport since its DIY and punk rock infused rebirth in 2001. With over 25,000 participants in over 700 leagues in almost 30 countries, female skaters encompass 98% of the sport. This is the story of the other 2%.

Sun Come Up, Executive Producer (2010) Depicting some of the world's first environmental refugees, the Carteret Islanders, this documentary short follows relocation leader Ursula Rakova and a group of young families as they search for new homes in war torn Bougainville, an autonomous region of Papua New Guinea.

Family Affair, Executive Producer (2010) At 10 years old, Chico Colvard accidentally shot his older sister in the leg. This seemingly random act detonated a chain reaction that exposed unspeakable realities and shattered his family. Thirty years later, Colvard ruptures veils of secrecy and silence again.

Playground, Executive Producer (2009) An investigation into the commercial sexual exploitation of American children, revealing that this sinister industry is not a problem exclusive to back-alley brothels in developing countries.

THE DIRECTOR - FILMOGRAPHY

THANK YOU/ IN SUPPORT OF CREDITS

The Square, Very special thanks credit (2013) The Square looks at the hard realities faced day-to-day by people working to build Egypt's new democracy. Catapulting us into the action spread across 2011 and 2012, the film provides a kaleidoscopic, visceral experience of the struggle. Cairo's Tahrir Square is the heart and soul of the film, which follows several young activists. Armed with values, determination, music, humor, an abundance of social media, and sheer obstinacy, they know that the thorny path to democracy only began with Hosni Mubarak's fall. The life-and-death struggle between the people and the power of the state is still playing out.

In Bed with Ulysses, Thank you credit (2012) How the novel that is widely considered the greatest work of modern fiction was created and the toll it took on James Joyce's family.

Saving Face, Made with support of credit (2012) A documentary short addressing the acid attacks, an extreme form of domestic violence in Pakistan, Saving Face follows plastic surgeon Dr. Jawad as he travels to Pakistan and treats survivors of acid violence who are attempting to restore their lives and to seek remedies in Pakistani society. While being treated by Dr. Jawad, these women fight for justice through the Pakistani legal system and partner with a handful of women in the Pakistani Parliament who take up the issue of acid violence on a federal level.

ALEXANDER HYDE PRODUCTION ASSISTANT

As a fledgling documentarian Alex has worked as production assistant, camera assistant, archival researcher and AP. He currently lives in London, UK where he is helping to manage the theatrical distribution of WE ARE MANY, and is looking forward to his return to NYC in the fall. When he's not out documenting the social issues of our time he enjoys drinking coffee, brewing beer, and trying to introduce his British friends to American-style cooking.
